

Quasimodo being burned

Notre Dame, Paris, von mir 1971 fotografiert

What's on Weibo: „While many people across the world are mourning the devastating fire that left parts of the 800-year-old Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris completely destroyed, Chinese social media users have collectively responded by remembering a painful part of China's history: the burning of the Old Summer Palace in 1860 by Western forces.“

Interessante Diskussion dort, und Recht haben sie auch.